Overview

Paul D. Bain represents land and business owners across the state of Florida when their property is taken for public projects. For over 30 years, he has represented people and businesses in eminent domain, inverse condemnation, and property rights litigation in state and federal courts. His clients have over 200,000 acres of property and over 5,000 locations throughout the state and include large and small landowners and business owners.

He has served in leadership of Florida eminent domain law and published and lectured in state and national forums. In 1993, he joined a boutique eminent domain firm and became a partner in 1998. Paul joined Trenam in October 2011 and has served as co-leader of the firm's Litigation and Dispute Resolution Practice Group.
